Run Time 2:30

Perched high on what William Randolph Hearst called “La Cuesta Encantada” Spanish for the “Enchanted Hill” overlooking the vast Pacific Ocean lies the majestic Hearst Castle.

There's a reason why it's called the “Hearst Castle.” George Bernard Shaw described Hearst’s estate as “what God would have built if he had the money.” The Hearst Castle, his home to 42 bedrooms, 61 bathrooms, 19 sitting rooms, 127 acres of gardens, indoor and outdoor swimming pools, a movie theater, tennis courts, and an airfield. During Hearst’s lifetime, it was also home to the largest private zoo in the world!
